RAIN SPOUT IS AGAIN TURNED ON NO. DAKOTA

Western Part of State Receives More Good Rains, Reports Here Show

SOME HEAVY FALLS

Fullerton Reports Five Inches To Soo Line, a New Record For The Year

Fargo, June 21.—More than three inches of rain fell in Fargo and Moorhead last night, according to the gauge of the Moorhead weather bureau. In Clay county Minnesota $50,000 damage was done to crops and buildings. The loss was divided about $25,000 to crops and $25,000 to buildings in and around Dillworth.

Damages estimated at from $3,000 to $10,000 was done to the railroad shops located in Dillworth by wind and to box cars in the yard, roofs being blown from them.

The rain was one of the heaviest in sometime and was of great benefit to crops in most of the eastern counties of the state.

The rain spout turned on North Dakota in the last few days continues to function.

The entire western part of the state received good rains last night, and in some places in the southwestern part of the state the rain amounted almost to cloudbursts.

Rain fell in northern McLean county, which had missed some of the rains received in other sections of the state.

The report of the Soo line division headquarters here today reads: "Very heavy rain Bismarck and east, including Pollock line during night. Heaviest points report as follows in inches: Napoleon, Lehr, Kula, Fredonia, two inches each; Burnstad, one and one-half inches; Fullerton, five inches. Good rain, still raining (10 a. m., today) Drake to Sanish, with three to four hours rain. This puts divisions in good shape for moisture and will be great help to crops north of here."

The rain at Fullerton, five inches, is the heaviest in North Dakota this year, but no report was received that any damage was caused by the downpour.

Some Heavy Falls
The weather bureau's report shows 4.1 inches rain at Dickinson, 3.9 at Bismarck, 3.0 at Dunn Center, 2.92 inches at Napoleon, for the southwestern part of the state. It also shows 3.26 inches at Moorhead, Minnesota, across the Red River from Fargo, 2.85 inches at Lisbon, 2.65 inches at Ellendale, 1.75 inches at Jamestown, and 1.15 inches at Amlen.

FORD WANTS TO BUILD DAM IN WISCONSIN

Asks to Construct 400 Foot Dam on Menominee River

Madison, Wis., June 21.—The railroad commission announced today that the Ford Motor Co. of Detroit had applied for a permit to construct, operate and maintain a dam in the Menominee river in Florence county, Wisconsin.

The application recites that the Ford company is engaged in the milling and application business and needs large amounts of power. Edsel Ford, president of the company, signed the request for a permit.

REPORTS SHOW RAIN HALTED CROP DAMAGE

Was Badly Needed in Almost All Parts of the State on Last Saturday

CONDITIONS CHANGED

County Extension Division Reports Show Condition Before Rains Began

Fargo, N. D., June 21.—Unusually early reports of damage to crops from drought are contained in the weekly reports of crop conditions received from 23 county extension agents at the office of the North Dakota Extension division. For the period ending last Saturday the reports indicated that permanent damage has been caused to the crops in localities in the northeastern and the central part of the state, and that rain was needed in every locality.

The situation has been temporarily alleviated, however, according to U. S. Weather Bureau officials who report rains in practically every section of North Dakota since last Saturday night. Rainfall at Fargo Tuesday and early Wednesday morning totaled .87 inch; Bismarck .34; Williston .14, and Devils Lake .04. Insects seem to be particularly active this year, although not epidemic in any locality. Cutworm activities, hitherto largely confined to the Slope district, are spreading in a northeastern direction, but are not as serious in any locality as they were a year ago. The false chinch bug is damaging flax fields and gardens in a number of localities, and many districts report grasshoppers at work, although the situation is nowhere serious.

That the rice crop of the state will not exceed one-half of the 1922 production is indicated by the reports from every district of poor stands, damage from drought, and of many fields being plowed up.

Leaf rust on wheat is reported from LaMoure county, but no specimens of the red stage of black stem rust of wheat have yet been found. The leaf rust is a distinctively separate disease, and ordinarily causes little damage to wheat in this state. Individual reports from the various counties for the period ending last Saturday follow:

WOULD MOVE REGULATORY OFFICE HERE

State Board of Administration To Direct This Department After July 1

GOES UNDER NEW LAW

Removal of Offices to Capitol Is Dependent Upon the Availability of Office

Headquarters for the administration of the regulatory laws of the state will be in the state capitol whenever sufficient office space becomes available, under a resolution passed by the state board of administration in meeting here yesterday afternoon. The time is indefinite, and may not be for many months.

The regulatory work is placed under the general supervision of the state board of administration after July 1, under new laws enacted by the 1923 legislature. The legislature's action was taken in part upon the recommendation of President John Lee Coulter of the Agricultural College and a committee named by Governor Nestos to consider the matter.

President Coulter had urged that the regulatory work be removed from the duties of the administrative force of the Agricultural College, holding that its purpose was not the same as that of the college, which was an educational institution. He had expressed belief that since it was an administrative department the administration should be conducted from the state capitol.

The board of administration members discussed the work of the department under the new law with C. P. Guthrie, state food commissioner and chairman, and went over the budget prepared by Mr. Guthrie for the ensuing year. The budget provides for expenditures of $50,000 for one year.

The legislature appropriated $44,000 for the work of the division for two years, but it is expected to be self-sustaining, because of fees received.

The only material readjustment in fees to be charged after July 1, according to Mr. Guthrie, is that the oil inspection fee is reduced from 3 to 2 1/2 cents per barrel.

The new regulatory division will centralize administration of pure food, hotel, oil and similar inspection.

WEATHER FORECASTS

CONFERENCE ON WHEAT IN CHICAGO ENDS

Price-Fixing Resolution Is Defeated by Narrow Margin at Conference

MANY RESOLUTIONS

Would Have Investigation of Interstate Freight Rates By The I. C. S.

CONFERENCE ADJOURNED

Chicago, June 21.—The National Wheat Conference inaugurated by Governors in seven states endeavoring to find means to stabilize wheat prices adjourned late last night after failing to adopt a resolution for a government fixed price on wheat.

A resolution demanding that the government buy at $1.50 a bushel all wheat not disposed of in regular sales was defeated. In its stead the resolutions committee was instructed to insert in its report the sense of the conference "that the price of wheat should be stabilized."

Chicago, June 21.—The national wheat council composed of representatives of all branches of the wheat industry was formed yesterday at the concluding session of the two day meeting called by Governor J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota, for the consideration of the problems of the industry.

Resolutions adopted by the conference approved the investigation of freight rates on grain products now being conducted by the Interstate Commerce Commission; urged development of water ways, and suggested feeding of lower grades to livestock, and urged scientific study of the problems of the industry by all elements.

A resolution introduced by Charles S. Barrett, of Union City, Georgia, president of the National Farmers Union, urging a world economic conference to be called by the United States, was lost by a rising vote of 25 to 56.

A substitute resolution by President T. B. of the Kansas Farmers Union, demanding a special session of congress for the enactment of a measure creating a government grain purchasing corporation to guarantee a price of not less than $1.50 a bushel for the 1923 harvest, was lost, approximately by a two to one vote.

The following were named to the first board of directors of the national wheat council to serve for a period of one year:

W. E. Bradford, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Daniel A. Wallace of Minnesota, publisher; Julius Fleischmann of Cincinnati, president of the Fleischmann Food Company; Alexander Lange, president of the International Harvester company; J. Edson White, president of Armour and Co., H. E. Byram, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad; George C. Jewett, of Portland, Ore., general manager of the Wheat Growers Association; Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, Ky., publisher of the Louisville Courier Journal; Alexander Taggart, president of the Taggart Baking Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; and Sidney Anderson, representative from Minnesota.

SEEKS DRY DATA IN KING TUT'S TOMB

New York, June 21.—William E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson is going to Egypt to visit the tomb of King Tut to discover how the ancient monarch stood on the dry question.

"Pussyfoot" will sail for England on the George Washington on June 23. Later he will go to South Africa and work his way over land to Tut's tomb in search of dry data.

Williams County Large Depositor In Defunct Bank

Williston, N. D., June 21.—The Williams County State bank of this city, which was closed Tuesday by the board of directors, due, it was stated to depleted reserve, is now undergoing an investigation by A. R. Reep, state bank examiner.

Williams county is probably the largest depositor in the closed bank. On April 30, according to the county treasurer's statement, the balance of county funds on deposit in the institution totaled $108,695.56 on demand and $24,000 on time deposit, a total of $132,695.56. This total has been somewhat reduced it is declared, but is still large.

PRESIDENT HARDING GREETED BY HOME FOLKS AS SPECIAL TRAIN SPEEDS THROUGH MIDDLE WEST

On Board President Harding's state, even though only for a few hours. Complete relaxation observed by the President since his departure yesterday from Washington already appears to have had a beneficial effect.

Both he and Mrs. Harding told members of their party that they had thoroughly enjoyed the trip thus far and they planned to get as much rest as possible before arriving in St. Louis. The plans to rest did not prevent them from continuing to appear on the observation platform of their car whenever the train came to a halt and to greet those who appeared at every point.

The presidential party will leave St. Louis for Kansas City shortly before midnight.

Today is the longest day of the year. It is 15 hours and 55 minutes from sunrise to sunset in Bismarck today, weather bureau figures show. The sunrise was at 4:47 a. m. and the sunset at 8:52 p. m.

Tomorrow the day will be shortened just a trifle, and in a few weeks the change will be noticeable.

Whether U. S. Can Break Seal Of Foreign Government Question, Mellon Says

Southampton, England, June 21.—The Cunard liner Bismarck, which sailed for New York last Saturday, bore sufficient alcohol liquor for her return voyage under the same kind of lock and seal as that used by the White Star liner Olympic, which sailed yesterday, it was learned today.

GRAVE PROBLEM

Washington, June 21.—Secretary Mellon began a series of conferences today in an effort to clear up the ship liquor question resulting from determination of foreign shipping companies to bring liquors into American waters under the custom seals of their governments.

Prior to the deliberations the secretary said there was no doubt of the general right to seize contraband liquor within American waters but added the question whether an agent of the American government dared destroy a foreign government seal presented a grave problem.

LONG DISTANCE HIKING BECOMES POPULAR; THREE REACH BISMARCK

Leland Schuster and H. R. Morgan, students of the University of North Dakota, stopped here today on a hiking trip to Seattle. They are not making the trip on a wager or for any other reason except to spend the summer on the Pacific Coast, and they are quite willing to accept automobile rides. They found people so hospitable that they walked only 25 miles between Grand Forks and Bismarck, via Fargo, getting free auto rides most of the way.

Raymond Bell, War Veteran and globe trotter, who is hiking toward the Pacific Coast, is expected to arrive in Bismarck tonight. Bell started out on a hike around the world. On his present trip he left Maine, April 28, 1922.

STREAM TURNS INTO VALLEY REPORTS SAY

Few Peasants Remaining in Linguaglossa Give Thanks To Patron Saint

MUSSOLINI THERE

Premier Enters Devastated Region to Head Relief Work Being Done

Catania, Italy, June 21.—Unless there is a new and strong emission of lava from Mount Etna, the town of Linguaglossa, which has been threatened for the last three days is almost certainly safe from destruction, says official reports from the devastated regions.

The new stream of lava which has been advancing steadily toward the town has deviated into a wide road and is flowing into a neighboring valley which is gradually becoming a veritable lake of fire.

The few inhabitants remaining in Linguaglossa described the diversion of the lava to a patron saint, Gidio, to whom prayers and gifts were frequently and fervently offered throughout the reign of terror.

SLIGHT DECREASE

Catania, Italy, June 21.—Reports from the Mount Etna region said there has been a slight decrease in the extension of the eruptions while the explosions within the crater are less violent.

With the arrival of Premier Mussolini in prospect the peasants who have been hourly expecting destruction of their homes from lava flow became more cheerful for such is the prestige of the Premier that many of the superstitious believe that he will only have to bring his will to bear on the volcano—Etna is almost to them a living person—for the eruption to decrease, even to stop.

DREADFUL AREA

Catania, June 21.—The smiling, fruitful and thickly populated slopes of Mount Etna and the surrounding country, as the correspondent of The Associated Press saw them in the past, have now become with ghastly suddenness "the land of dreadful things."

Through the thick darkness, which can almost be felt, glow the craters, extending for miles and gradually growing darker. As the molten mass cools and hardens, cracks and crevices appear on the surface through which can be seen bubbling up of the boiling lava from beneath.

The fields of Fiume Fiedde, Diana and Calatabiano, once green and beautiful, now covered with heavy deposits of dust and cinders, tremble and heave beneath the feet, while the roaring sounds accompanying the eruption mingle with the rumblings of lorries through the darkness carrying away the refugees and their possessions from the doomed villages.

As one approaches the volcano, masses of fiery material thrown up from the smaller craters can be seen; they roll slowly down the mountain-side, and above them are dense clouds of smoke and vapor. Orchards and gardens have been consumed in the intense heat long before the lava reaches them, throwing off myriads of sparks, and finally smolder down into grim blackness.

At Castiglione, where the progress of the devouring lava stream is slow, but steady, the inhabitants linger in their houses, collecting and packing their possessions, though doubtless most of these must be abandoned along the road. The living room in almost every house has been transformed into a chapel with statues of the Madonna and Saints, and candles lighted before them, while kneeling figures prostrate themselves in prayer for protection. The visit of King Victor Emmanuel was the outstanding event of the day. It served to infuse new courage and spur the helpers and workers to relieve the sufferers.

10 KILLED 25 INJURED IN FIRE

Chicago, June 21.—Ten negroes are known to have been killed and at least 25 were injured in a fire which swept a three-story tenement house here early today. The 180 negro tenants of the building were cut off from escape by the destruction of the main stairway and numbers jumped to the street from windows.

Scores of heroic rescues were made by firemen. The fire started in a furniture store on the ground floor and quickly destroyed the wood tenements. The dead were taken to a near-by morgue for identification.

Madison, Wis., June 21.—The railroad commission announced today that the Ford Motor Co. of Detroit had applied for a permit to construct, operate and maintain a dam in the Menominee river in Florence county, Wisconsin.

According to specifications included in the application it is to be 300 ft. high and 400 feet long. It will develop 25,000,000 kilowatt hours a year, the energy to be used for the Ford manufacturing plant in Michigan.

The dam site is three miles west of Ironwood, Michigan, on the Menominee river, which is the boundary line between Michigan and Wisconsin.

The application recites that the Ford company is engaged in the milling and application business and needs large amounts of power. Edsel Ford, president of the company, signed the request for a permit.

County Extension Division Reports Show Condition Before Rains Began

Fargo, N. D., June 21.—Unusually early reports of damage to crops from drouth are contained in the weekly reports of crop conditions received from 23 county extension agents at the office of the North Dakota Extension division. For the period ending last Saturday the reports indicated that permanent damage has been caused to the crops in localities in the northeastern and the central part of the state, and that rain was needed in every locality.

That the dry crop of the state will not exceed one-half of the 1922 production is indicated by the reports from every district of poor stands, damage from drouth, and of many fields being plowed up.

Hail damage was very light last week, according to information received from Martin S. Hagen, manager of the state hall insurance department. There was no heavy damage in any locality, and the reports of losses by counties include Barnes 1, Benson 3, Bottineau 15, Burke 12, Cass 5, Dickey 13, Divide 6, Eddy 2, Foster 6, Grand Forks 2, Kidder 4, LaMoure 11, McHenry 12, McLean 5, Renville 25, Sioux 1, Stutsman 28, Traill 3, Walsh 3, Wells 2, Williams 2.

Score of Prisoners Convicted During the War Are Ordered Freed

Washington, June 21.—Immediate release of more than a score of federal prisoners convicted of violating war laws but with continued detention of almost as many more was ordered yesterday by President Harding before leaving on his western trip.

The president acted on 158 pardon and commutation cases, a record-breaking number in the opinion of department of justice officials. He granted 30 conditional and 14 unconditional commutations, one full pardon, restored full rights to 27 former prisoners and denied 84 applications for pardons or commutations. He also ordered remission of fines in two cases.

Interest centered in the cases of those convicted of violating the espionage, draft and other war laws, whose applications had been pressed by various organizations and persons of prominence. These numbered 48 and the president granted commutations to 27, but denied applications in 21 cases, including a group of twenty alleged members of the industrial workers of the world convicted at Sacramento, Cal. Two convicted there, however, had their sentences commuted conditional on their deportation.

Sentences of 22 alleged I. W. W. members convicted in the celebrated Chicago trials and sent to Leavenworth penitentiary were commuted to expire at once. Three of four alleged I. W. W. members convicted at Wichita Kansas receive commutations.

"Pussyfoot" will sail for England on the George Washington on June 23. Later he will go to South Africa and work his way over land to Tut's tomb in search of dry data.

PRESIDENT HARDING GREETED BY HOME FOLKS AS SPECIAL TRAIN SPEEDS THROUGH MIDDLE WEST

On Board President Harding's state, even though only for a few hours. Complete relaxation observed by the President since his departure yesterday from Washington already appears to have had a beneficial effect. Both he and Mrs. Harding told members of their party that they had thoroughly enjoyed the trip thus far and they planned to get as much rest as possible before arriving in St. Louis. The plans to rest did not prevent them from continuing to appear on the observation platform of their car whenever the train came to a halt and to greet those who appeared at every point. The presidential party will leave St. Louis for Kansas City shortly before midnight.

GRAVE PROBLEM UP

Whether U. S. Can Break Seal Of Foreign Government Question, Mellon Says

Southampton, England, June 21.—The Cunard liner Berengaria, which sailed for New York last Saturday bore sufficient alcoholic liquor for her return voyage under the same kind of lock and seal as that used by the White Star liner Olympic, which sailed yesterday, it was learned today.

GRAVE PROBLEM. Washington, June 21.—Secretary Mellon began a series of conferences today in an effort to clear up the ship liquor question resulting from determination of foreign shipping companies to bring liquors into American waters under the custom seals of their government.

Prior to the deliberations the secretary said there was no doubt of the general right to seize contraband liquor within American waters but added the question whether an agent of the American government dared destroy a foreign government seal presented a grave problem.

They are not making the trip on a wager or for any other reason except to spend the summer on the Pacific Coast, and they are quite willing to accept automobile rides. They found people so hospitable that they walked only 25 miles between Grand Forks and Bismarck, via Fargo, getting free auto rides most of the way.

STREAM TURNS INTO VALLEY REPORTS SAY

Few Peasants Remaining in Linguaglossa Give Thanks To Patron Saint

MUSSOLINI THERE

Premier Enters Devastated Region to Head Relief Work Being Done

Catania, Italy, June 21.—Unless there is a new and strong emission of lava from Mount Etna, the town of Linguaglossa, which has been threatened for the last three days is almost certainly safe from destruction, says official reports from the devastated regions.

The new stream of lava which has been advancing steadily toward the town has deviated into a wide road and is flowing into a neighboring valley which is gradually becoming a veritable lake of fire.

The few inhabitants remaining in Linguaglossa described the diversion of the lava to a patron saint, Gidlo, to whom prayers and gifts were frequently and fervently offered throughout the reign of terror.

SLIGHT DECREASE

Catania, Italy, June 21.—Reports from the Mount Etna region said there has been a slight decrease in the extension of the eruptions while the explosions within the crater are less violent.

With the arrival of Premier Mussolini in prospect the peasants who have been hourly expecting destruction of their homes from lava flow became more cheerful for such is the prestige of the Premier that many of the superstitious believe that he will only have to bring his will to bear on the volcano—Etna is almost to them a living person—for the eruption to decrease, even to stop.

DREAFFUL AREA

Catania, June 21.—The smiling, fruitful and thickly populated slopes of Mount Etna and the surrounding country, as the correspondent of The Associated Press saw them in the past, have now become with ghastly suddenness "the land of dreadful night."

Through the thick darkness, which almost he felt, glow the crimson of the lava fire flowing from the craters, extending for miles and gradually growing darker. As the molten mass cools and hardens, cracks and crevices appear on the surface through which can be seen bubbling up of the boiling lava from beneath.

The fields of Fiume Fiedro, Diana and Catibian, once green and beautiful, now covered with heavy deposits of dust and cinders, tremble and heave beneath the feet, while the roaring sounds accompanying the eruption mingle with the rumblings of lorries through the darkness carrying away the refugees and their possessions from the doomed villages.

As one approaches the volcano, masses of fiery material thrown up from the smaller craters can be seen; they roll slowly down the mountain-side, and above them are dense clouds of smoke and vapor. Orchards and gardens have been consumed in the intense heat long before the lava reaches them, throwing off myriads of sparks, and finally smolder down into grim blackness.

At Catibian, where the progress of the devouring lava stream is slow, but steady, the inhabitants linger in their homes, collecting and packing their possessions, though doubtless most of these must be abandoned along the road. The living room in almost every house has been transformed into a chapel with statues of the Madonna and Saints, and candles lighted before them, while kneeling figures prostrate themselves in prayer for protection. The visit of King Victor Emmanuel was the outstanding event of the day; it served to infuse new courage and spur the helpers and workers to relieve the sufferers.

10 KILLED 25 INJURED IN DIS FIRE

Chicago, June 21.—Ten negroes are known to have been killed and at least 25 were injured in a fire which swept a three-story tenement house here early today. The 160 negro tenants of the building were cut off from escape by the destruction of the main stairway and numbers jumped to the street from windows.

Scores of heroic rescues were made by firemen.

The fire started in a furniture store on the ground floor and quickly destroyed the wood tenements. The dead were taken to a nearby morgue for identification.

T. R. ATKINSON GIVEN TRIBUTE BY ROTARIANS

Boys' Welfare Work Discussed at Luncheon of Club—Kiwanis Welcomed

Rotarians paid a fine tribute today to T. R. Atkinson, city engineer, for his work in connection with the purchase of the Bismarck Water Supply company's plant and his general work in behalf of a municipally owned plant for the city. Each Rotarian stood up and three cheers and a tiger were given for "Tom." Mr. P. P. Quinn was spokesman of the occasion. He said that he believed that 99 per cent of the city was with City Engineer Atkinson in his work for a better water supply for the city. He declared that this tribute was in recognition of his services to the city during the last two years. He referred to Maine, the Pine Tree State, as the home of Mr. Atkinson, stating that the city engineer in his career here had to have some of the hard attributes of that tree which often had its best growth in face of opposition and even barren soil. At the conclusion of his remarks he presented Mr. Atkinson with a miniature pine tree.

At the same time, the work of the city commission was praised as well as that of the special citizens committee. Mr. Atkinson responded feelingly and gave credit to his co-workers in the project of securing an adequate water supply for Bismarck.

T. R. Atkinson had as his guest W. G. Black of the state highway commission who has become a resident of Bismarck.

The establishment of a Kiwanis club was welcomed by the Rotary club which had as its guests Walter C. Mumpston, Chicago, International Representative of Kiwanis, Eric Thorberg, secretary of the local club as well as Spencer Boise, treasurer. The club will be installed formally next Thursday at the McKenzie hotel.

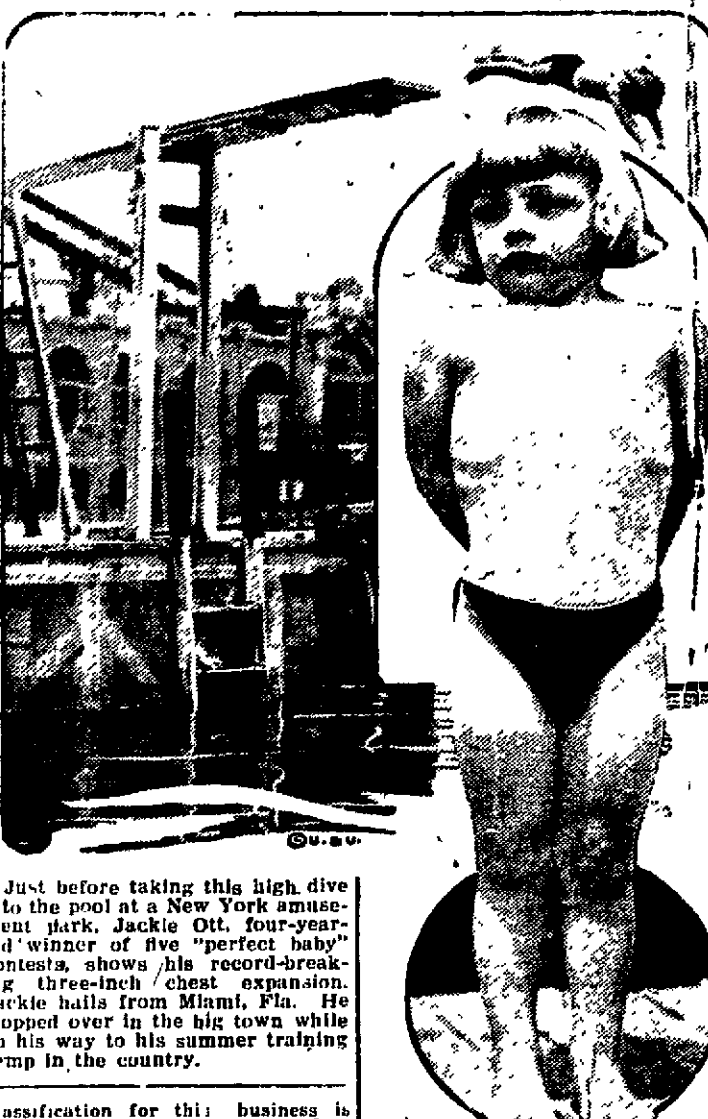

Mr. Mumpston urged cooperation with the Kiwanis club declaring that from a survey of the city he was impressed with the field here for such a club. Bismarck is now represented in the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis organizations.

Boy's welfare work taken on as a Rotary venture but supported generally by the citizens of Bismarck held the center of the stage today. L. S. Craswell presided and explained the scope of the work. Teams started out today to raise the 1923 quota for the work. J. J. M. MacLeod has done a fine work among the boys of the city and the project is being well supported by the people of Bismarck.

George Dunceland told of his experience in a Milwaukee Rotary meeting. Bob Webb gave an interesting address on Rotary ethics. A telegram was received from J. L. Bell who is attending the St. Louis convention of International Rotary in which he stated that a most interesting session was in progress.

A letter was received from Jack Whitney resigning from Rotary club as he expects to be gone from the city all summer and in the fall enter a new line of business. The

WORK OF N. D. MAN IN RUSSIA NOW COMPLETE

Mr. Rothschilder Distributes Clothing and Food to Hungerstricken Colonists

PROLONGS STAY

To Collect Information Relative to Actual Needs and Conditions

Jacob Rothschilder in a letter from Odessa, Russia says the discharge of all obligations resting upon him as president and representative in behalf of the N. D. C. R. A. for R. for the proper distribution of a consignment of clothing, money and foodstuffs among the hunger-stricken colonies of South Russia has been completed. Arriving in Odessa March 14th, three days subsequent to the revision and replacement of his roads under German Red Cross supervision, the task of distribution proceeded rapidly, and within one week was entirely completed.

Odessa is the central marketing point for those lying within a radius of 45 miles colony villages. Automobiles being prohibitive luxuries and railroad facilities the hope of the future, the land-settlers regularly drive into the city to do their trading. Therefore it was that Mr. Rothschilder was able to deliver personal packages to addresses themselves, or to friends, or relatives so that none were unprovided or lost, since having completed his mission in that respect, Mr. Rothschilder is prolonging his stay to extend greetings from personal acquaintances in North Dakota, to collect information relative to the actual needs and conditions of the people, also names and addresses of lost friends and relatives, and to accept other numerous duties imposed upon him by the score or more colonists who visit him every day.

In order to obtain a clearer understanding of the shortage emergency, permission was requested from the Soviet officials to make trips into the different colony villages. On one tour, occupying a week's time, in company with Herr Schmitt, branch president of the Schwarz-Meer Kolonisten Verein, a wing of villages were visited the most important of which included: Laisdorf, Kleinliebenthal, Griesliebenthal, Neudorf, Josephthal, Freundenthal, Johannesthal, Marienathal, Mannheim, Elsasce, Selz, Kandel, Strasburg and Baden.

The villages are very numerous, and time was wanting, therefore stops of only an hour or two were made in each, sufficient in time for registration at the government offices, and immediately following hastily to call a meeting of the respective village relief committees which further attended by the vicarage. Mr. Rothschilder and Schmitt to discuss the needs of the villages and the most efficient means of rendering future aid. Mr. Rothschilder spoke briefly at each meeting tendering greetings from America, and welcoming questions and suggestions. He invited the poor in each town who were unable to buy seed to confer with their respective relief committee and report in Odessa for a share of a carload of potatoes purchased for this purpose with funds from the N. D. C. R. A. for R.

In open discussions it developed that the urgent need for food and clothing among the colonists had substantially decreased and that the greatest need now lays in the demand for actual money or credit necessary for a recoup in farm equipment and provisions with which to build up and productivity. Only a small fraction of land available for cultivation is at present being worked. The farmers lack machines, horses and seed for this purpose and have no immediate means of acquiring the capital necessary other than through loans or gifts, hence all eyes are turned toward America. Under the present system of partial field cultivation, a short of total crop failure spells another following starvation period—the people are unable to help themselves sufficiently to avoid it.

At the close of each meeting the priest or preacher present described vividly the extreme conditions of 1922-23 in which years large numbers of persons in each village died of disease, cold and starvation, and voiced the uttermost heart and friends of his community for the timely aid and generosity of America in rendering assistance beginning March 1921. It was commonly repeated that had help from America delayed two months longer the half of the population would have died outright from starvation. The Russian people and especially the German-Russians who received personal aid from friends and relatives cannot sufficiently express their thanks and admiration for American charity.

In cases, such as in Kandel and Elsasce Mr. Rothschilder and the N. D. C. R. A. for R., were honored by a rising vote of thanks for the part that North Dakota through private and general initiative had played in a following up relief consisting of food drafts and clothing packages. Most every colony family has friends or relatives in North Dakota who have sent personal donations. Many photographs were taken of community grounds and private families which in North Dakota will prove interesting to former colonists. On his way back Mr. Rothschilder will cross the Roumanian border and spend a few days among the German-Russians in Bessarabia, a region also strongly represented by farmer-settlers in North Dakota.

Work of eradicating tuberculosis in cattle is proceeding rapidly in the state, according to reports submitted to the State Livestock Sanitary Board by W. F. Crewe, state veterinarian.

"During the past seven months 5,538 cattle were tested, 1,097 being found with tuberculosis," said Dr. Crewe. "We now have 1,313 Federal and State Accredited Tuberculosis-Free herds, comprising 29,302 cattle."

The Federal Department of Agriculture has ruled that no indemnity will be paid for tuberculous steers and unregistered bulls. Dr. Crewe said, but under a ruling by Attorney-General Shaffer in such instances the state must pay one-half of the appraised value less the salvage.

Because of this situation, the state board had adopted a regulation providing that all previous regulations are repealed; that cattle entering North Dakota must be accompanied by a certificate of health indicating they are free from any symptoms of communicable disease, that all cattle that can be used for breeding or dairying purposes must be tuberculin tested within a period of 30 days of date of shipment, except that cattle from a regularly federal and state accredited tuberculosis free herd will be admitted within a year of date of last test, and that the tuberculin or thermal tuberculin test applied in conformance with federal rules will be approved.

General Condition Good
The general situation with respect to livestock was reported good. Glanders affecting horses is said to be well under control, only 27 horses having been destroyed for this disease in the past seven months. Two outbreaks of horse mange are now being contended with, one in the vicinity of New Rockford and one in the vicinity of Fessenden. Dipping tanks have been established and agents of the Livestock Sanitary Board are supervising the dipping of affected and exposed horses. Two instances of cattle scabies also were demonstrated, it being the first evidence of this disease in ten years, and investigations now are being made in the pathological department of the Agricultural College to determine if, as suspected, some cattle have died due to eating mouldy sweet clover. Hog cholera prevailed only to slight extent in the southern portion of the state in the past year, the state generally being free from the disease. A few reports also were received of hairless pigs, the condition being described as due to lack of iodine in the sows' systems.

"Feed during the past winter was fairly plentiful in all parts of the state and cattle were carried through the winter with comparatively little loss," Dr. Crewe reported.

Lumpy Jaw Complaints
Some complaints having been received regarding the use of milk from cows affected with actinomycosis, or lumpy jaw, and in view of the fact that it is held the disease under certain conditions may be transmitted to human beings, the Livestock Sanitary Board in session here adopted a regulation providing that "no milk or cream shall be taken from any animal affected with actinomycosis or lumpy jaw, until such products have been properly pasteurized and sterilized."

Present at the meeting of the Live Stock Sanitary Board were W. L. Richards, president; I. J. Foster, Vice-President; Ross R. Martin, Secretary; Dr. D. F. Seed and Dr. J. W. Robinson, the latter succeeding Dr. R. S. Long of Upland, whose term had expired.

and some of the late grain has been injured by the hot, dry weather which prevailed during the week. Corn has made splendid progress and the condition of the flax crop is good. Pastures are in need of rain and hay crops are later than last year."

Ramsey.
"Some crops are suffering from lack of moisture due to the warm, windy weather of the week. The rye crop looks very poor. Corn is doing well. Some alfalfa and sweet clover has been cut for hay and these crops, generally speaking, are very good." A. M. Chalkey, Devils Lake.

McHenry.
"Wheat has made no apparent growth during the past two weeks due to drought conditions. The warm weather of the week and the hot winds have damaged the wheat crop up to 30 per cent according to farmers' estimates. Early seeded corn and barley have also been damaged to some extent, while late seeded grains are making a very poor growth. Early seeded flax is in fair condition but the late seeding is very slow due to the dry weather. Winter rye crop is generally poor with the exception of those fields planted on summer-fallow. Spring rye and corn are in fair condition but in need of moisture. Potatoes are making good growth but potato beetles are doing considerable damage and seem to be ready to devour the plants as soon as they show up above ground. First cuttings of sweet clover and alfalfa are being made and both crops are in excellent condition. Spring seeding of these crops, however, is making a slow growth. Grasshoppers are doing considerable damage to crops in the northern part of the county and false chinch bugs are also active. Cutworms are reported in one or two localities. A small amount of grasshopper poison has been spread."

Adams.
"Rye is poor but the condition of the wheat crop was never better. Corn is coming along in excellent shape and cutworms are not causing the usual amount of damage. Flax is showing up in good condition. Alfalfa is ready to cut for hay and pastures and sweet clover are in fine shape. False chinch bugs are reported to be damaging gardens but have had little effect on field crops thus far." P. J. Gwyther, Hettinger.

Slope.
"Most of the farmers are busy cultivating corn. Grain crops are making good growth. A small amount of late corn and millet are being sown." Chas. Eastgate, Amidon.

Stutsman.
"Several localities report that crops are suffering slightly from drought. During the week there were severe winds June 16 and 17 and a few local showers. Rye will be a rather poor crop. The flax acreage will be increased 25 per cent. A small amount of flax and potatoes are still being planted. Small grain is in good condition but is not making a rank growth. The corn acreage is increased over last year and this crop is looking good. Cutting of sweet clover and alfalfa for hay has started."

Morton.
"The crop is still holding up despite the drought conditions. Windy weather occurred during the week and rain is badly needed. Corn is looking fine. Alfalfa and sweet clover are being cut for hay." G. H. Ise, Mandan.

Kidder.
"Crops are already slightly damaged from drought, as dry weather prevailed during the entire week. Conditions are slightly better in the southern part of the county where the rainfall has been heavier. Late seeding looks particularly poor. Alfalfa and sweet clover are in fair condition but native pastures are beginning to show brown in spots. Slight gopher damage to corn fields has been reported." T. R. Andrus, Steele.

Grant.
"Grain is beginning to show the effects of dry weather and severe winds, particularly that which was stubbled in. Corn is doing nicely and cultivation is in progress. With the exception of a local shower in the southeastern part of the county, there was no rainfall during the week and the weather was dry and windy. A small amount of cutworm damage was reported during the week. Pastures and meadows are in fairly good condition and cutting of alfalfa and sweet clover has started." R. C. Newcomer, Carson.

Wells.
"Crops are suffering from drought and farmers estimate that the prospects for a normal crop have been reduced at least 25 per cent. In a few places the grain fields are already turning yellow. The damage is most severe in the southern and western parts of the county. Rye fields are very thin but the corn crop is above normal in stand and growth. Cutting of alfalfa and sweet clover for hay is now in progress." E. W. Vancura, Fessenden.

Mountain.
"Dry, windy weather prevailed during the week and late planted grain is in need of rain, particularly that part of the crop which was stubbled in. Late planted flax will not germinate until a good rain comes. All early seeded grain is in good condition and can withstand the drought for a reasonable period. Rye is very poor. Potatoes are coming up and bugs are appearing in large numbers. Sweet clover and brome grass are doing well but native pastures and meadows are in need of rain. Gophers are reported to be very numerous in townships where poisoning campaigns were not carried on." A. K. Bredvold, Stanley.

McKenzie.
"Small grain is in need of rain but is not yet suffering to any extent. Hot, dry weather occurred during the week with the exception of a few local showers Wednesday. Corn is making wonderful growth and potato planting is practically finished. First cuttings are being made of alfalfa and sweet clover and are producing a good tonnage of hay. Pastures are in need of moisture. A few localities report slight grasshopper damage." Paul C. C. Wagner, Watford City.

SEES RECORDS BROKEN THIS YEAR AT PARK

Yellowstone to Attract More
People Than Ever Before,
Says Railroad Man

On his way to attend the opening of Yellowstone National Park this season, A. B. Smith, Passenger Traffic Manager, Northern Pacific Railway, stopped in Bismarck.

"We expect to break all attendance records in Yellowstone Park this year," said Mr. Smith. "We are looking for 120,000 tourists. Last year there were 93,000 in the Park."

A. B. SMITH

All roads and mountain passes have been cleared of snow, hotels and camps made ready and the big yellow fleet of sight-seeing cars freshly painted and polished.

"Tourist travel to Yellowstone began today, and to handle the business it has been necessary for the Northern Pacific to add a new daily train—the Yellowstone Comet—which will make its first trip on July 1st."

"The tens of thousands of visitors and tourists who are coming this season cannot help being deeply impressed by the agricultural attractions of this state. It looks like a bumper year for crops and for tourists."

Mr. Smith pointed out to North Dakota friends the tourist activities on both sides of this state. In Minnesota, 10,000 lakes are being widely advertised, and in Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon the lure of the mountains and the national parks is being capitalized, with the result that last year more than 300,000 travelers saw the farms and modern cities of North Dakota lying on the plains between the lakes of the East and the mountains of the West.

"The more people who see North Dakota, the more are likely to settle here, or to send their sons to make their homes, or to invest their money in the future of the state," said Mr. Smith, "and while North Dakota itself does not have large numbers of tourists the benefits of this travel is bound to be reflected in your prosperity."

TWO WOMEN OF BRITTIN IN BIG FIGHT

A fierce battle between two women of Brittlin resulted in a hurry-up call yesterday afternoon for Sheriff Hedstrom and Deputy Edward Kafer, who responded. A Mrs. Thompson, wife of a railroad man and Mrs. M. C. Oles, wife of a farmer, became embittered over chickens—they are neighbors—and a real battle that would do credit to two hard-boiled men resulted, according to reports from Brittlin. After the fight both raced to swear out a warrant against the other, but Mrs. Thompson won and charged Mrs. Oles with assault and battery, according to authorities. Hearing will be June 27th before Justice Cashman.

Edward N. Farnum, living on Sixteenth street, was taken to jail last night to await action by the insanity board.

WORK OF N. D. MAN IN RUSSIA NOW COMPLETE

Mr. Rothschilder Distributes Clothing and Food to Hungerstricken Colonists

PROLONGS STAY

To Collect Information Relative to Actual Needs and Conditions

Jacob Rothschilder in a letter from Odessa, Russia says the discharge of all obligations resting upon him as president and representative in behalf of the N. D. C. R. A. for R. for the proper distribution of a consignment of clothing, money and food-stuffs among the hunger-stricken colonies of South Russia has been completed. Arriving in Odessa March 14th, three days subsequent to the revision and emplacement of his goods under German Red Cross supervision, the task of distribution proceeded rapidly, and within one week was entirely completed.

Odessa is the central marketing point for those laying within a radius of 45 miles colony villages. Automobiles being prohibitive luxuries and railroad facilities the hope of the future, the land-settlers regularly drive into the city to their trading. Therefore it was that Mr. Rothschilder was able to deliver personal packages to addressees themselves, or to friends, or relatives so that none were misrouted or lost, since having completed his mission in that respect, Mr. Rothschilder is prolonging his stay to extend greetings from personal acquaintances in North Dakota, to collect information relative to the actual needs and conditions of the people, also names and addresses of lost friends and relatives, and to accept other numerous duties imposed upon him by the core or more colonists who visit him every day.

In order to obtain a clearer understanding of the shortage emergency, permission was requested from the Soviet officials to make trips into the different colony villages. On the tour, occupying a week's time, he accompanied with Herr Schmitt, branch president of the Schwarzer Kolonisten Verein, a wing of villages were visited the most important of which included: Luidorf, Kleinbenthal, Gressbenthal, Neudorf, Josephthal, Freundenthal, Johannesthal, Mariensthal, Mannheim, Salsce, Sels, Kandel, Strasburg and Baden.

The villages are very numerous and time was wanting, therefore stops of only an hour or two were made in each, sufficient in time for registration at the government offices, and immediately following hastily to call a meeting of the respective village relief committees which further attended by the vicarage clergyman assembled in joint with Mr. Rothschilder and Schmitt to discuss the needs of the villages and the most efficient means of rendering future aid. Mr. Rothschilder spoke briefly at each meeting tendering greetings from America, and welcoming questions and suggestions. He invited the poor in each town who were unable to buy seed to confer with their respective relief committees and report in Odessa for a share of a carload of potatoes purchased for this purpose with funds from the N. D. C. R. A. for R.

In open discussions it developed that the urgent need for food and clothing among the colonists had substantially decreased and that the greatest need now lays in the demand for actual money or credit necessary for a recon in farm equipment and provisions with which to build up land productivity. Only a small fraction of land available for cultivation is at present being worked. The farmers lack machines for cultivation is at present being worked. The farmers lack machines, horses and seed for this purpose and the means of acquiring the capital necessary other than through loans or gifts, hence all eyes are turned toward America. Under the present system of partial field cultivation, a short of total crop failure spells another following starvation period—the people are unable to help themselves sufficiently to avoid it.

At the close of each meeting the priest or preacher present described vividly the extreme conditions of 1922-23 in which years large numbers of persons in each village died of disease, cold and starvation, and voiced the uttermost heartfelt thanks of his community for the timely aid and generosity of America in rendering assistance beginning March 1921.

It was commonly repeated that had help come from America delayed two months longer the half of the population would have died outright from starvation. The Russian people and especially the German-Russians who received personal aid from friends and relatives cannot sufficiently express their thanks and admiration for American charity.

In cases, such as in Kandel and Salsce Mr. Rothschilder and the N. D. C. R. A. for R. were honored by a rising vote of thanks for the part that North Dakota through private and general initiative had played in a following up relief consisting of food drafts and clothing packages. Most every colony family has friends or relatives in North Dakota who have sent personal donations. Many photographs were taken of common city grounds and private families which in North Dakota will prove interesting to former colonists. On his way back Mr. Rothschilder will cross the Roumanian border and spend a few days among the German-Russians in Bessarabia, a region also strongly represented by farmer settlers in North Dakota.

Are Your Days A Pleasure?

Perfect Health Will Make Them So

Minneapolis, Minn.—"When I was ill with influenza my wife gave me Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to cleanse my system of impurities. Our son was ill at the same time with this disease; he also was given the Pellets, and I am sure they helped us both to come safely thru this serious illness. We have been using the Pellets in our home for over twenty years, and have always found them effective in ridding the body of impurities, and they have never in any instance caused distress or any harm."

"I am equally as enthusiastic concerning Dr. Pierce's Anuric (kidney and backache) Tablets as a relief for kidney and bladder weakness. I keep Anuric in readiness for my own use all the time and consider it unexcelled as a kidney medicine."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

PROBLEMS OF THE FARMER
Probably never before in the history of the nation have the problems of the farmer been the subject of so many conferences and the issue of so many political campaigns. To date these efforts to settle the ills of agriculture have served chiefly to inform the people of the plight of the American farmer during this epoch of deflation.

Those who view the farmer's economic condition from other than a political angle know that the real problem is to adjust wheat production to the normal needs, but how to do it—there is the rub!

The farmer who is equipped as a wheat raiser cannot revamp his scheme of production overnight. It takes money and credit to buy stock and enter the field of diversification. There are many difficulties in the way of the farmer accepting all the advice that is so glibly given him by the "experts." It is refreshing to note, however, that the farmer is gradually seeing that success lies in balancing his output—not depending wholly on one kind of crop. As he diversifies his product his credit improves and he finds that the problem of financing his needs is not as difficult.

Some good may come out of the wheat conference held in Chicago, but the multiplicity of advisers as far as the farmer is concerned has yielded little as yet in real dividends to the patient who ills they seek to cure. As one editor has vividly put it, to limit the supply is as hard as "marcelling a wildcat."

The "Eat More Wheat" campaign is a good publicity stunt and as advertising is always beneficial may help to increase consumption of surplus wheat. The raisin growers stimulated the sale of their product by similar methods, but it is merely a palliative and not a cure.

HARDING AND THE MINNESOTA CRISIS
Despite a Macedonian cry for help, President Harding on his Alaskan trip has decided firmly not to talk politics publicly, confining his remarks to problems in which the whole electorate is interested regardless of party affiliation. Probably after all this is better "politics." There comes to mind the famous Minnesota trip of President Taft who stopped at Winona to help reelect James Tawney, house leader. The famous speech accomplished the opposite result and created a campaign issue that was disastrous to the party. Minnesota Republicans have brought pressure to bear upon President Harding to revamp his itinerary so as to permit of one speech in that state in the interests of Governor Preus. But the chief executive is firm in his refusal and the national committee will have to give what assistance it can to defeat the forces of radicalism and rout the agents of discontent.

It is proposed, however, to send Senator Moses and a retinue of the best G. O. P. spell binders available into every corner of the state to fight La Follette and his followers. One of President Harding's addresses upon what the Republican party has done for the farmer will be broadcasted probably by radio and the mails. But the influence of his appearance in the flesh will be lacking in the Minnesota senatorial campaign.

YOUR AMBITION
When you were a child, what did you want to be when you "grew up?" Many a man smiles in reminiscent moments when he recalls, as a boy, he was undecided whether to become the drum major at the head of the minstrel parade or the engineer of No. 4, the train that "made" the village in the evening and chug-chugged away in the mysterious gathering darkness.

We doubt if there is any American male who, at some time or other in youth, doesn't have this ambition to be the man at the throttle in the locomotive cab. A boy's ambition is vagrant and changeable as the wind. At times he aspires to such goals as running a candy store. But periodically he comes back to his true love—the railroad engineer's job. For it is a job symbolic of youthful ambition—handling power, being the center of attraction, and travel to explore the alluring country beyond the horizon.

We smile at the boy, but these three attractions of the engineer's job (power, vanity and travel) persist in our matured ambitions. A queer thing, ambition. It's a mighty rare man who, no matter how successful, doesn't wonder at times if he wouldn't have been more successful at something else.

At the end of the road, when we face death, we realize that it doesn't matter so much what our earthly ambitions were, as long as we improved our spiritual natures and helped others. Then the Great Engineer takes us on the train into eternity.

DOUGHBOY
Only one American soldier remains on duty on the Rhine, according to Lieutenant P. J. Davis, army detective, arriving from Europe. Davis declines to give the name of the lone remnant of the army of occupation. But he's probably an expert at keeping books—winding up the details. You picture him with tortoise rim specs, looking more like an efficiency expert than a soldier.

Hardly seems possible, but it's six years since the first doughboys were rushed across the Atlantic. A big job, and it took a lot of time. In the one American soldier representing us on the Rhine, there is something almost tragic, certainly historic. The last to leave. That's an honor.

PAY-ENVELOPES

This concerns general prosperity, eventually your pocket-book: Since the first of the year the railroads have handled 170 cars of freight for each 143 cars in the corresponding period of last year and 133 cars the season before that.

Freight movement is to general business conditions what the human pulse is in the diagnosis of most diseases. And freight in 1923 has been moving on a scale nearly 29 per cent higher than in the year of depression, 1921. The significance of this figure is that the difference between hard times and prosperity is a matter of about 17 per cent.

FIGHTING THE CONSTITUTION

There are not a few people who have permitted their enthusiasm for prohibition to destroy their perspective on matters of government. Those who are afflicted in this way are declaiming against movements for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment or the modification within the limits of that amendment of statutes enacted for its enforcement as attacks on the constitution, with all of malignancy which that implies.

The eighteenth amendment was enacted in accordance with the provisions contained in the constitution itself for the amendment of that document. In making provision for constitutional amendments those who framed it recognized that the constitution was not a finished and perfect document, applicable to all conditions for all time, but that the people might properly wish from time to time to add to, subtract from or modify its provisions.

Those who worked for the eighteenth amendment were quite within their rights, as were those of a different opinion. It would scarcely be profitable at this time to review the conditions under which the amendment was promoted and adopted, or how nearly it came to expressing the actual will of the people of the United States. It is pretty certain that if all the people could have looked ahead—as some did and foreseen clearly the conditions which prevail today, the adoption of the amendment would not have been allowed to go by default. However, the amendment was adopted according to constitutional forms, and it is now the duty of those who now work for the repeal of the amendment to do no more fighting the constitution than were those who a few years ago sought to change that document by inserting in it something that its framers had not placed there. These in favor of the amendment a few years sought to change the constitution, and did change it. The other now seek to change it back and they are equally within their constitutional rights in making that effort. The fact that for various reasons there is little probability of their success does not change the legality of their effort at all.—Grand Forks Herald.

Through some mistake, John dear, only the first part of my letter got into the envelope I sent you yesterday. I found the rest of it in my waste basket.

If I remember rightly I had just spoken to you about the girl who was trying to commit suicide. With this explanation I am sending the rescued sheets.

Then I heard a man's voice say: "Don't be a fool, Sancho. Of course you want to live. No man—not even I—wants to die."

"Oh, Jean, Jean, why did you marry?" the girl said. "I believed in you so thoroughly. I gave you all my love when I gave you myself. I did not dream that you did not care for me, that it was only the thrill of loving that moved you."

"Life is not worth living without you, Jean, and last night, when I saw that beautiful dressed lady, regular, splendidly null woman at your side, something just snapped in my brain and I wrote you the note telling you that you must meet me on this boat tonight."

"I intended to kill you and myself. See here, I have a revolver."

There was a slight scuffle and the man eventually succeeded in taking it from the woman.

"I would not give it to you," she panted, "if I could really shoot you, but when I saw you, Jean, I knew I could not do that. I could kill myself but not you so I determined to throw myself overboard, just as you reached me."

"Jean, I can't stand it. My thoughts drive me mad. I picture you giving her the same caresses that you gave me. I hear you calling her 'Sancho'."

"I would not give it to you," she panted, "if I could really shoot you, but when I saw you, Jean, I knew I could not do that. I could kill myself but not you so I determined to throw myself overboard, just as you reached me."

"Spirits Forged the Checks," Woman Says In Court

MRS. HELEN ROBERTSON McALPINE

By NEA Service
St. Paul, Minn., June 21—Would, or could, a spirit from the other world return to wreak its vengeance upon a human being?
Mrs. Helen M. Robertson McAlpine, convicted forger here, says they do.
She blames her present predicament on evil wraiths come back from beyond the grave.
"They forced me to write the checks! They held my hand!" she told the court. But the judge, not convinced, sentenced her to prison. Now, preparing to serve out the long years, she continues in her denunciation of the evil spirits.
Spiritualism occupied a goodly part of the trial. It developed that Mrs. McAlpine, six years ago, wrote a volume of letters dictated by a "spirit." The handwriting, police say, is that of the same "ghost" that signed the spurious checks.
"Wraiths Chucked!"
In the letters, Mrs. McAlpine, then Mrs. Robertson, told how Elbert Hubbard had "arrived in almost perfect spiritualty." She explained that unhappy spirits hung mournfully over their earthly graves while "initiated wraiths chuckled over their sorrow."
The letters say theosophists reveal an astounding knowledge of psychic phenomena.

Do not gripe, pain, or nauseate.

SEMI-TAILORED OVERBLOUSE

A play train just for the children

TINY TOTS, from today on, will have their own special food and special menu on the Northern Pacific Railway. L. K. Owen, superintendent of dining cars, has announced.

THE cover of the Northern Pacific's "Tiny Tots Menu" is a checkerboard affair of red, white and blue. The booklet itself is crowded with Mother Goose rhymes and pictures to catch the eyes of the youngsters. Every little traveler is presented with one of the booklets as a souvenir of his trip.

"On N. P. trains we pay just as particular attention to the little things, as to the big things," said Mr. Owen. "It is a pleasure and delight for all of us to see that the 'tiny tots' get the best we can give them."

One of the new poems reads:

How does your garden grow?
Roses tomatoes and great big potatoes—

NESTOS FOR PROHIBITION

States Views While Attending Chicago Conference

Governor Nestos stands for prohibition and enforcement, he told the Chicago Herald-Examiner in an interview while attending the National Wheat Conference in Chicago, which sought views of all Governors present on the subject. Governor Nestos is quoted as follows:

"As far as the wet and dry issue is concerned I feel that the states should enforce the laws of the constitution in every instance. If I had been in the position Governor Smith was placed in I am certain I would have vetoed the repeal."

"However, I feel that our first concern is to adjust railroad rates so that the farmer can make a reasonable profit on his investment and fair wages for his time. This does not mean government ownership."

"Another thing the farmer wants changed is the tariff. It 'protects' what he buys and does not materially help him in the things he has to sell."

PROBLEMS OF THE FARMER
Probably never before in the history of the nation have the problems of the farmer been the subject of so many conferences and the issue of so many political campaigns. To date these efforts to settle the ills of agriculture have served chiefly to inform the people of the plight of the American farmer during this epoch of deflation.
Those who view the farmer's economic condition from other than a political angle know that the real problem is to adjust wheat production to the normal needs, but how to do it—there is the rub!
The farmer who is equipped as a wheat raiser cannot revamp his scheme of production overnight. It takes money and credit to buy stock and enter the field of diversification. There are many difficulties in the way of the farmer accepting all the advice that is so glibly given him by the "experts."
It is refreshing to note, however, that the farmer is gradually seeing that success lies in balancing his output—not depending wholly on one kind of crop. As he diversifies his product his credit improves and he finds that the problem of financing his needs is not as difficult.
Some good may come out of the wheat conference held in Chicago, but the multiplicity of advisers as far as the farmer is concerned has yielded little as yet in real dividends to the patient whose ills they seek to cure. As one editor has vividly put it, to limit the supply is as hard as "marceling a wildcat."
The "Eat More Wheat" campaign is a good publicity stunt and as advertising is always beneficial may help to increase consumption of surplus wheat. The raisin growers stimulated the sale of their product by similar methods, but it is merely a palliative and not a cure.

HARDING AND THE MINNESOTA CRISIS
Despite a Macedonian cry for help, President Harding on his Alaskan trip has decided firmly not to talk politics publicly, confining his remarks to problems in which the whole electorate is interested regardless of party affiliation. Probably after all this is better "politics." There comes to mind the famous Minnesota trip of President Taft who stopped at Winona to help elect James Tawney, house leader. The famous speech accomplished the opposite result and created a campaign issue that was disastrous to the party.
Minnesota Republicans have brought pressure to bear upon President Harding to revamp his itinerary so as to permit of one speech in the interests of Governor Preus. But the chief executive is firm in his refusal and the national committee will have to give what assistance it can to defeat the forces of radicalism and rout the agents of discontent.
It is proposed, however, to send Senator Moses and a retinue of the best G. O. P. spell binders available into every corner of the state to fight La Follette and his followers. One of President Harding's addresses upon what the Republican party has done for the farmer will be broadcasted probably by radio and the mails. But the influence of his appearance in the flesh will be lacking in the Minnesota senatorial campaign.

YOUR AMBITION
When you were a child, what did you want to be when you "grew up?" Many a man smiles in reminiscent moments when he recalls, as a boy, he was undecided whether to become the drum major at the head of the minstrel parade or the engineer of No. 4, the train that "made" the village in the evening and chug-chugged away in the mysterious gathering darkness.
We doubt if there is any American male who, at some time or other in youth, doesn't have this ambition to be the man at the throttle in the locomotive cab.
A boy's ambition is vagrant and changeable as the wind. At times he aspires to such goals as running a candy store. But periodically he comes back to his true love—the railroad engineer's job. For it is a job symbolic of youthful ambition—handling power, being the center of attraction, and travel to explore the alluring country beyond the horizon.
We smile at the boy, but these three attractions of the engineer's job (power, vanity and travel) persist in our matured ambitions.
A queer thing, ambition. It's a mighty rare man who, no matter how successful, doesn't wonder at times if he wouldn't have been more successful at something else.
At the end of the road, when we face death, we realize that it doesn't matter so much what our earthly ambitions were, as long as we improved our spiritual natures and helped others. Then the Great Engineer takes us on the train into eternity.

DOUGHBOY
Only one American soldier remains on duty on the Rhine, according to Lieutenant P. J. Davis, army detective, arriving from Europe. Davis declines to give the name of the lone remnant of the army of occupation. But he's probably an expert at keeping books—winding up the details. You picture him with tortoise rim specs; looking more like an efficiency expert than a soldier.
Hardly seems possible, but it's six years since the first doughboys were rushed across the Atlantic. A big job, and it took a lot of time. In the one American soldier representing us on the Rhine, there is something almost tragic, certainly historic. The last to leave. That's an honor.
PAY-ENVELOPES
This concerns general prosperity, eventually your pocket-book: Since the first of the year the railroads have handled 170 cars of freight for each 143 cars in the corresponding period of last year and 133 cars the season before that.
Freight movement is to general business conditions what the human pulse is in the diagnosis of most diseases. And freight in 1923 has been moving on a scale nearly 29 per cent higher than in the year of depression, 1921. The significance of this figure is that the difference between hard times and prosperity is a matter of about 17 per cent.

FIGHTING THE CONSTITUTION
There are not a few people who have permitted their enthusiasm for prohibition to destroy their perspective on matters of government. Those who are afflicted in this way are declaiming against movement for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment or the modification within the limits of that amendment of statutes enacted for its enforcement as attacks on the constitution, with all of malignancy which that implies.
The eighteenth amendment was enacted in accordance with the provisions contained in the constitution itself for the amendment of that document. In making provision for constitutional amendments those who framed it recognized that the constitution was not a finished and perfect document, applicable to all conditions for all time, but that the people might properly wish from time to time to add to, subtract from or modify its provisions.
Those who worked for the eighteenth amendment were quite within their rights, as were those of a different opinion. It would scarcely be profitable at this time to review the conditions under which the amendment was promoted and adopted, or how nearly it came to expressing the actual will of the people of the United States. It is pretty certain that if all the people could have looked ahead—as some did—and foreseen clearly the conditions which prevail today, the adoption of the amendment would not have been allowed to go by default. However, the amendment was adopted according to constitutional forms, and it is now law.
But the people who now work for the repeal of the amendment are no more fighting the constitution than were those who a few years ago sought to change that document by inserting in it something that its founders had not placed there. Those in favor of the amendment a few years sought to change the constitution, and did change it. The other now seek to change it back and they are equally within their constitutional rights in making that effort. The fact that for various reasons there is little probability of their success does not change the legality of their effort at all.—Grand Forks Herald.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS
By Olive Roberts Barton
The next place the Choo-Choo Express stopped at in Choo-Choo Land was Tick-Tock Town.
"Of course you never can guess who lives here," said Mister Panch, the conductor man, to Nancy and Nick.
"It must be clocks!" said Nancy.
"You're right!" said Mister Panch. "You're a very good guesser."
So the Twins got off and looked around.
An old grandfather's clock came along and stopped. "Looking for the right time, my dears!" he asked in a deep voice.
"No, we're traveling around because I lost my doll and we are hunting for her," said Nancy.
"My! My!" said the grandfather's clock. "Are little girls still so careless and losing things? They were doing it three hundred years ago when I was young and I had hoped they had learned better ways. My! My!"
Along rattled an alarm clock just then. "Is old grand-daddy preaching a sermon as usual?" it asked inquisitively. "Don't listen to him. Listen to me instead. I'm new and up-to-date. Listen!" And it began to ring like a hundred telephones.
Nancy and Nick listened to something worth while. "It was the alarm clock speaking. 'I chime every fifteen minutes and plays a tune on the hour. I sit on the parlor-mantel and tell company when it's time to go home.'"
"That shows you haven't any manners," spoke up a tiny voice, and the Twins were astonished to see a small watch standing at their feet. "I don't ring at all or show myself off but I tell time just the same and I never lose a minute."
"Boom! Boom! Boom!" It was the town clock striking three.
"What's all the fuss about?" it called down. "Still quarreling about which is important, are you? Well, I'll settle that. I am far far the most important clock, for everyone can see me."
"I guess you are right," called Nick. "But we must be going if your time is right. The Choo-Choo Express leaves Tick-Tock Town at three o'clock. Goodbye everybody." (To Be Continued.) (Copyright, 1923, NEA Service, Inc.)

CHAPTER 1
The Ramor
Mark Brendon, at thirty-five, already stood high in the criminal investigation department of the police. He was indeed about to receive an inspectorship.
Mark was taking holiday on Dartmoor, devoting himself to his hobby of trout fishing and accepting the opportunity to survey his own life from a bird's-eye point of view, measure his achievement, and consider impartially his future, not only as a detective but as a man.
He found himself with five thousand pounds saved as a result of some special grants during the war and a large honorarium from the French Government. He was also in possession of a handsome salary and the prospect of promotion, when a senior man retired at no distant date. Too intelligent to find all that life had to offer in his work alone, he now began to think of culture, of human ideas, and those added interests and responsibilities that a wife and family would offer.
He was somewhat overweary after a strenuous year; but to Dartmoor he always came for health and rest when opportunity offered, and now he had returned for the third time to the Duchy Hotel at Princetown. Being a good talker he never failed of an audience there. But better still he liked an hour sometimes with the prison warden. For the convict prison that dominated that gray smudge in the heart of the moors known as Princetown held many interesting and famous criminals.
He had found an unknown spot where some good trout dwelt and on an evening in mid-June he set forth to tempt them. He had discovered certain deep pools in a disused quarry fed by a streamlet.
Fogginator Quarry, wherein lay these preserves, might be approached in two ways. Originally broken into the granite bosom of the moor for stone to build the bygone war prison of Princetown, a road still extended to the deserted spot and joined the main thoroughfare half a mile distant.
A direct path over the moor, leaving Princetown railway station upon his left hand he set his face west where the waste heaved out before him dark against a blaze of light from the sky.
Against the western flame appeared a figure carrying a basket. Mark Brendon, with thoughts on the evening rise of the trout, lifted his face at a light footfall. Where upon there passed by him the fairest woman he had ever known. She was slim and not very tall. She wore no hat and the auburn of her hair, piled high above her forehead, tangled like warm sunset beams and burned like a halo round her head. And she had blue eyes—blue as the gentian. Their size impressed Brendon.
She walked quickly with a good stride and her slight, silvery skirts and rosy, silken jumper showed her figure clearly enough—her round hips and firm, girlish bosom.
Her eyes met his for a moment with a frank, trustful expression, then she had passed.
The vision made Mark pensive, as sudden beauty will, and he wondered about the girl.
Tramping onward now, the detective came to a great crater that gaped on the hillside above the dead quarry workings of Fogginator. Underneath him opened a cavity with sides two hundred feet high.
Mark proceeded to the extreme breadth of the quarry, fifty yards northerly, and stood above two wide, still pools in the midst. Trout moved and here and there circles of light widened out on the water and rippled to the cliff beyond.
Mark set about his sport, yet felt that a sort of unfamiliar division had come into his mind and, while he brought two tiny-eyed flies from a box and fastened them to the hair-like leader he always used, there persisted the thought of the auburn girl—her eyes blue as April—her swift, delicate tread.
He began to fish as the light thickened; but he only cast once or twice and then decided to wait half an hour. He grounded his rod and brought a brier pipe and a pouch of tobacco from his pocket. The things of day were turning to slumber; but still there persisted a tinkling sound, uttered monotonously from time to time, which the sportsman supposed to be a bird. It came from behind the great activities that ran opposite his place by the pools.
Brendon suddenly perceived that it was no natural noise but arose from some human activity. It was, in fact, the musical note of a mason's trowel, and when presently it ceased, he was annoyed to hear heavy footsteps in the quarry.
A big, broad man approached him, clad in a Norfolk jacket and knickerbockers and a red waistcoat with gaudy brass buttons.
The stranger stopped as he saw Brendon, straddled his great legs took a cigar from his mouth and spoke.
"Ah! You've found 'em, then?"
"Found what?" asked the detective.
"Found these trout. I come here for a swim sometimes. I've wondered why I never saw a rod in this hole. There are a dozen half-pounders there and possibly some bigger ones."
It was Mark's instinctive way to study all fellow creatures with whom he came in contact.
He saw a pair of broad shoulders and a thick neck over which hung a square, hard jaw and a determined chin. Then came a big mouth and the largest pair of mustaches Brendon remembered to have observed on any countenance. They were of a foxy red, and beneath them flashed large, white teeth when the big man talked in rather grating tones. His hair was a fiery red, cut close, and of a hue yet more violent than his mustaches.
The big man appeared friendly, though Brendon heartily wished him away.
"This really, place seems to be 'witch' people," said the big man.
The other laughed. "There is a magic here. It gets into your blood."
"So it does. A man I know is building himself a bungalow out here. He and his wife will be just as happy as a pair of wood pigeons—at least they think so."
"I heard a trowel clinking."
"Yes, I lend a hand sometimes when the workmen are gone. But think of it—so turn your back on civilization and make yourself a home in the desert!"
"Might do worse—if you've got no ambitions."
"Yes—ambition is not their strong point. They think love's enough—poor souls. Why don't you fish?"
"Waiting for it to get a bit darker."
"Well, so long. Take care you don't catch anything that'll pull you in."
Laughing at his joke the red man strode off through the gap fifty yards distant. Then in the stillness Mark heard the purr of a machine. He had evidently departed upon a motor bicycle to the main road half a mile distant.
When he was gone Brendon rose and strolled down to the other entrance of the quarry that he might see the bungalow of which the stranger had spoken.
The day grew very dim and the fret of light and shadow died off the earth, leaving all vague and vast and featureless. Brendon returned to his sport and found a small "coachman" fly sufficiently destructive. The two pools yielded a dozen trout, of which he kept six and returned the rest to the water.
Tramping back under the stars, his thoughts drifted to the auburn girl of the moor.
Four evenings after his first fishing expedition to the quarries, Mark devoted a morning to the lower waters of the Meavy River; at the end of that day, not far short of midnight, when glasses were empty and pipes knocked out, half a dozen men, just about to retire, heard a sudden and evil report.
Will Blake, "Boots" at the Duchy Hotel, was waiting to extinguish the lights, and seeing Brendon he said: "There's something in your line, happened, master, by the look of it. A pretty bobbly tomorrow."
"A convict escaped, Will?" asked the detective, yawning and longing for bed. "That's about the only fun you got up here, isn't it?"
"Convict escaped? No—a man done in seemingly. Mr. Pendean's uncle-in-law have slaughtered Mr. Pendean by the looks of it."
"And who is Mr. Pendean?"
"The gentleman what's building the bungalow down to Fogginator."
Mark started. The big red man flashed to his mind complete in every physical feature. He described him and Will Blake replied: "That's the chap that's done it. That's the gentleman's uncle-in-law!"
Brendon went to bed and slept no worse for the tragedy. Nor, when morning came and every maid and man desired to tell him all they knew, did he show the least interest.
He was just slipping on a raincoat and about to leave the hotel when Will Blake appeared and handed him a letter. He felt curious and, not associating the incident with the rumored crime, set down his rod and creel, opened the note, and read what was written:
"3 Station Cottages, Princetown.
"Dear Sir: The police have told me that you are in Princetown, and it seems as though Providence had sent you. I fear that I have no right to seek your services directly, but I can answer the prayer of a heart-broken woman and give her the benefit of your genius in this dark moment, she would be unspcakably thankful.
"Faithfully yours,
"Jenny Pendean."
Mark Brendon murmured "damn" gently under his breath. Then he turned to Will.
"Where is Mrs. Pendean's house?" he asked.
"In Station Cottages, just before you come to the prison works, sir."
"Run over, then, and say I'll call in half an hour."

PIRATES FALL BEFORE BRAVES IN STRUGGLE

Weakest Teams in National League Prove Toughest For The Pittsburghers

Chicago, June 21.—If the Boston Braves continue today to frighten the Pirates of Pittsburgh with the sort of Indian sign they have made during the current series, the Cincinnati Reds will rise into second place of their own dead weight and then tomorrow the tag and tussle for runner-up in the National League will be on for Cincinnati will open a two-game series there after resting today.

Pittsburgh maintained its hold on second place by beating St. Louis, its first strong rival and when it needed first by waiting the New York Giants, twice out of three games but finally along came two of the weakest clubs of the league, the Pirates and Boston, and the Pirates lost all their frightfulness.

The Reds came up by taking the third game out of four from Brooklyn yesterday, knocking out of the box Vance, who held them to one hit earlier in the week. The game ended Brooklyn's road trip with six victories and eight defeats and dropped them into sixth place. The Reds were dispatched by Chicago which has been fighting toward the first division for two weeks.

The Cubs managed to take a game from the lately troublesome Quakers, 10 to 1, and are within one point of St. Louis, which dropped another to New York, 7 to 5, giving the Giants the edge in the series. Elmer Smith, the Yankee pinch hitter who has hit nine times out of 14 times at bat this season, delivered in the crisis again yesterday, doubling with the bases full and enabling the Yankees to tie the score with Detroit, but the Tigers despite a weakened infield came back and won, 9 to 7, and as Philadelphia beat Chicago, 4 to 3 in 11 innings the American League situation reverted to its day before yesterday.

The Tigers went back to the first division as Boston beat St. Louis, 5 to 1, Cleveland beat Washington, 5 to 1.

Chicago's Cubs made a great day fattening their batting averages at the expense of four Philadelphia pitchers, everybody getting one or more hits. Fricberg led the attack with four, including a triple, Mitchell the fifth twirler, stopped the hitting.

George Stouland, pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, has been released under option to the Wichita Falls club of the Texas league.

WORLD SERIES FAME PASSES QUICKLY

Three Former Herpes In National Victories Change Teams

JIM BARNES AND HANK GOWDY.

By BILLY EVANS
Three world series heroes, Johnny Rawlings, Jesse Barnes and Hank Gowdy, recently passed through the ash of the trade market.

John William Rawlings, who choked the last ounce of life out of the New York Yankees when the Giants won the 1921 series from their American League rivals, has departed from the family of John J. McGraw. There have been others before Rawlings and the recent transfer strengthens the trade-mark in baseball. It reads:

"It isn't what you were but what you are."

The Pittsburgh Pirates now own Rawlings, having obtained him recently in a transfer with the Phillies when they parted with Pitcher Glazner and Infielder Tierney and also drew Pitcher Lee Meadows.

One Play Wins Fame
The Phillies drew Rawlings from the Giants via purchase and were forced to arrange a trade for him when he refused to associate himself with the National League tail-enders.

The play that turned Rawlings from obscurity to fame was the last thriller in the final game in 1921. The Giants had won four and the Yankees three as they teed up in the eighth inning.

It was a battle, too, with Art Nehf at Philadelphia at the Yankee stadium on July 23 were signed yesterday.

Leonard will receive 37½ per cent of the receipts and Tandler 12½ per cent for the 15 round bout, it was said.

Tandler and Leonard fought a 12 round no decision bout at the Jersey City arena last July in which the champion was credited with a hair line decision.

Financial terms it was understood, called for the champion to receive 37½ per cent of the gross receipts and Tandler 12½ per cent. Club officials estimated that the fight would attract a gate of $400,000 and on this basis Leonard would receive about $150,000 and Tandler $50,000.

Puzzling Plays
By Billy Evans
THE PLAY
What happens to the records in a forfeited game? A minor league fan says he attended two games last year in which the umpire was compelled to forfeit the contest as a last resort.

In one of the games the forfeit came in the last half of the fourth inning. The game was awarded to the home club.

The other game was forfeited in the last half of the eighth, the visiting club being declared the winner.

What the fan wanted to know is: Are the records as made in the two games included in the record, or are they estimated entirely?

THE INTERPRETATION
It is customary to consider the records in a forfeited game, only when such a game has passed four and one-half or five innings. In the first game, which was forfeited in the last half of the fourth, it was not a legal game and no consideration would be given the records as made by the players. The other game, which was forfeited in the last half of the eighth would go into the records as played up to the time of the forfeiture.

Billy Evans Says
Pitchers come and pitchers go but it is extremely doubtful if there will ever be another Cy Young. For 22 years Cy was a big league star, a pitcher feared to the very end of his career.

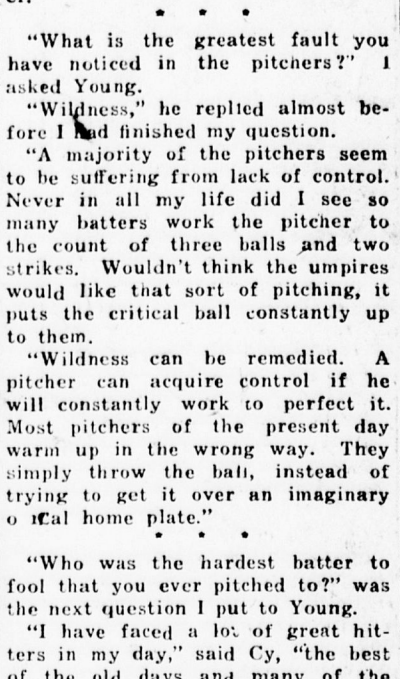

During the recent Shriners' week in Washington I had a couple of interesting chats with the veteran. Cy was one of the 30,000 visiting Shriners who made merry in the national capital. As would be expected, Cy spent the afternoon at the ball park watching Detroit and Washington in action.

Prior to one of the games Cy dropped into my dressing room for a chat. In his baseball days Cy was as good a fellow as he was a great pitcher. An umpire could miss a dozen in succession on Cy and there never would be a complaint from him. No umpire who worked when Young was in the big show can ever remember Cy taking issue with a single decision.

I asked him how the game looked to him.

"Just the same as ever, they still make hits and errors and strike out. Guess the boys do hit them a little harder due in a measure to the lively ball. The pitching, however, doesn't look quite as good as in the old days. Strikes me the old boys made the

Law's Waiting for Crooks in Shelby

Shelby, Mont., June 21.—Ye pickpockets and glib-tongued "con" men! Here's a little tip.

Better steer clear of Shelby's Fourth of July celebration.

For the law, with bracelets newly oiled, is waiting for you.

Chief of Police Shegou Alsop and Sheriff H. E. Benjamin have your number. So watch your step!

Alsop and Benjamin are directing the policing of Shelby and the Dempsey-Gibbons fight arena.

Detachments of the Montana National Guard, specially deputized members of the American Legion, Pinkerton and Burns' operatives, detectives from the big cities and a retinue of railroad special agents are going to help them uphold the law.

Lieutenant Ray Gaunt, identification officer for the Great Falls police department, will be on the job with a slough of Bertillon records.

And federal and state prosecution officers and deputy United States marshals will keep their eyes peeled for purveyors of pre-Volsteadian beverages.

"We're going to combine the system of state and city enforcement with a certain type of military discipline," explains Chief Alsop.

"The national guard will give the military aspect, while the legion men will serve mainly in guarding and patrolling capacities. The railroad detectives and the men from other cities will aid us in spotting undesirable."

But Mayor James Johnson doesn't expect any trouble.

"Montana crowds," he says, "always are well behaved. There will be more gentlemen per square foot than you ever saw at a fight. If they're any rough-necks around, they'll not be Montanans."

The Italian, Rocco Stramaglia, who was fired from the Dempsey camp for opening a cut over the champ's eye by butting (through there are many who saw the incident who claim it was a hard, right-hand punch that did the damage) is now aiding Gibbons condition himself.

After his first workout with Gibbons I asked him to compare the two men. He said:

"Gibbons hit me four times to Dempsey's once. He is much the faster man of the two, in my opinion. Dempsey's punches hurt the most, but at that they were not of the knockout variety. But probably neither of the two were putting all they could on their blows."

But fans who saw Dempsey tear into the Italian after he had cut his eye open, are of the opinion that Jack's leveling. If so, the champion's punch would seem to have lost much of its former power.

And if Jack has lost the terrific punching ability that made him one of the most feared titheholders in the history of the ring, the Fourth of July may see a new heavyweight king crowned.

For Dempsey's sole defense has always been the tearing, crushing attack that earned him the title "The Tiger of the Ring."

When two players set out to play a friendly match and no finite number of holes are agreed upon, what is usually regarded as the proper number? On reaching the 10th hole, A says he thought 36 holes were to be played, while B says he figured 18 constituted the distance, since no agreement was reached prior to the start.

Eighteen holes are usually regarded as the proper number for a match unless a larger number were previously agreed upon.

Tigers and Sox Escape Cellar For 23 Years

A. G. Havers, 25-year-old British golfer, who has just wrested the British open championship from Walter Hagen, American holder of the title.

The American League, inception in 1900, now is in the 24th season of its career.

But even though that covers quite a span of playing seasons there are nevertheless two clubs in the circuit's roster, though while not having won as many pennants and world championships as some of the others, can lay claim to at least one exceedingly unusual and likewise rare distinction.

Detroit and Chicago are the pair in question. And their claim to fame lies in the fact that not since the opening of the league 23 years ago have they wound up the season in last place. On several occasions they have been "hanging around" the old cellar door, but thus far they haven't succeeded in getting in.

In four different campaigns the Tigers finished seventh, while the White Sox turned the trick on three occasions. But that has been the "worst" they could do.

Each of the other six clubs has been the doormat for the league at least once, with Connie Mack and his Athletics usurping the lowly station seven times. In fact Mack evidently thought so well of the place that he kept the admittance key seven years in a row or from 1915 to 1921, inclusive. Last season though, after being submerged for so long a time, he was finally obliged to come up for air.

The White Sox also boast another record—in fact two other records—for in the 23 completed seasons, the Comiskey gang has landed in the second division but seven times, being one better than the Red Sox in this respect, and has finished in the "first four" on 16 attempts or more times than any of the others.

To the St. Louis Browns goes the rather doubtful honor of having placed a team in the "first division" on the least number of occasions, the Missouri crowd landing there but five times. Washington is only one ahead of the Browns in this accomplishment. Incidentally these two teams are the only ones in the league which have not yet won a pennant.

PIRATES FALL BEFORE BRAVES IN STRUGGLE

Weakest Teams in National League Prove Toughest For The Pittsburghers

Chicago, June 21.—If the Boston Braves continue today to frighten the Pittsburgh Pirates with the sort of lead in a game they have made during the current series, the Pirates will find it difficult to win a second place in the National League.

The Pirates maintained its hold on second place by beating St. Louis, 4 to 1, in a strong rivalry and which it secured first by walloping the New York Giants twice out of three games but finally along came two of the weakest clubs of the league, the Pirates and Boston, and the Pirates lost all their frightfulness.

The Pirates taking the third game out of four from Brooklyn yesterday, knocking out of the box Vance, who held them to one hit earlier in the week. The game ended with a 10-0 victory for the Pirates. The Pirates were displaced by Chicago which has been fighting toward the first division for two weeks.

The Cubs managed to take a game from the lately trouble some Quakers, 16 to 1, and are within one point of St. Louis, which dropped a sixth to New York, 7 to 5, giving the Giants the edge in the series.

The Pittsburgh Pirates now own Rawlings, having obtained him recently in a transfer with the Phillies when they parted with Pitcher Glavin and infielder Tierney and also drew Pitcher Lee Meadows.

One Play Wins Fame
The Phillies drew Rawlings from the Giants via purchase and were forced to arrange a trade for him when he refused to associate himself with the National League leaders.

The play that turned Rawlings from obscurity to fame was the last play in the final game in 1921. The Giants had won four and the Yankees three as they tied up in the eighth inning.

It was a battle, too, with Art Nehf at the Yankee stadium on July 27, when Leonard will receive 47.2 percent of the receipts and Tendler 12.2 percent for the 15 round bout, it was said.

Tendler and Leonard fought a 12 round no decision bout at the Jersey City arena last July in which the champion was credited with a hair line decision.

Financial terms it was understood, called for the champion to receive 37.2 percent of the gross receipts and Tendler 12.2 percent. With officials estimated that the fight would attract a gate of $100,000, and on this basis Leonard would receive about $150,000 and Tendler $50,000.

During the recent Shriner's week in Washington I had a couple of interesting chats with the veteran. Cy was one of the 30,000 visiting Shriner's who made merry in the national capital. As would be expected, Cy spent the afternoon at the ball park watching Detroit and Washington in action.

Prior to one of the games Cy dropped into my dressing room for a chat. In his baseball days Cy was as good a fellow as he was a great pitcher. An umpire could miss a dozen in succession on Cy and there never would be a complaint from him. No umpire who worked when Young was in the big show can ever remember Cy taking issue with a single decision.

I asked him how the game looked to him.

"Just the same as ever, they still make hits and errors and strike out. Guess the boys do hit them a little harder due in a measure to the lively ball. The pitching, however, doesn't look quite as good as in the old days. Strikes me the old boys made the

WORLD SERIES FAME PASSES QUICKLY

Three Former Heroes In National Victories Change Teams

JIM BARNES AND HANK GOWDY.

By BILLY EVANS
Three world series heroes, Johnny Rawlings, Jesse Barnes and Hank Gowdy, recently passed through the circle of the trade market.

John William Rawlings, who choked the 1st ounce of life out of the New York Yankees, when the Giants won the 1921 series from their American League rivals, has departed from the family of John J. McGraw.

There have been others before Rawlings, and the recent transfer strengthens the trade-mark in baseball. It reads:

"It isn't what you were but what you are."

The Pittsburgh Pirates now own Rawlings, having obtained him recently in a transfer with the Phillies when they parted with Pitcher Glavin and infielder Tierney and also drew Pitcher Lee Meadows.

Job of being a .300 hitter a bit harder

"What is the greatest fault you have noticed in the pitchers?" I asked Young.

"Wildness," he replied almost before I had finished my question. "A majority of the pitchers seem to be suffering from lack of control. Never in all my life did I see so many batters work the pitcher to the count of three balls and two strikes. Wouldn't think the umpires would like that sort of pitching, it puts the critical ball constantly up to them."

"Wildness can be remedied. A pitcher can acquire control if he will constantly work to perfect it. Most pitchers of the present day warm up in the wrong way. They simply throw the ball, instead of trying to get it over an imaginary or real home plate."

"Who was the hardest batter to fool that you ever pitched to?" was the next question I put to Young.

"I have faced a lot of great hitters in my day," said Cy, "the best of the old days and many of the crack modern hitters like Cobb, Ed Delahanty was a tough fellow to fool. Willie Keeler was always troublesome. Lajoie didn't have a weakness."

"I could go down the line and name a lot of great hitters I have pitched against. It may seem strange, but the really great hitters in baseball were never as troublesome for me as certain so-called weak hitters. I can recall many a ball game that I lost when some weakling came through after I had disposed of the sluggers."

When I pressed him for a reason for such a statement, he replied: "Possibly it is due to the fact that pitchers often let up on their stuff when facing the ordinary hitter. That of course is a grave mistake most pitchers make. It is good policy never to treat any batter too lightly, even though he is the pitcher."

It's too bad that pitchers like Cy Young cannot go on forever. It is just such characters as Young that have made the national pastime what it is, the greatest of all sports.

Kinks o' the Links

By BOB DORMAN, NEA Service Writer.
Great Falls, Mont., June 21.—Is Jack Dempsey slipping?

That is the question that is today causing more than one heated argument among the patrons of the fight game in these parts.

In the Dempsey camp confidence runs high. No one appears to question the ability of the champion to take care of his Fourth of July opponent.

His sparring partners are loud in their praise of Dempsey's work. Kearns talks confidently of future matches.

But Jack's workouts have disappointed more than one of his ardent admirers.

Old Kays Punch Missing.
He has been the target for the punches of sparring partners who would have been easy marks for the Dempsey that brought Willard low.

More than once has the crimson shadow from Jack's face during the few workouts that he has held in the past three weeks.

The old kays punch that caused a steady stream of human punching bags to flow in and out of the Dempsey camp during the training periods of previous fights, has been conspicuous by its absence.

True, he has dropped several of his trainers. But they have bounced off the floor immediately. Very different from Toledo, Benton Harbor and Atlantic City.

Thinks Gibbons Better.
The Italian, Rocco Stramaglia, who was fired from the Dempsey camp for opening a cut over the champ's eye by butting (through there are many who saw the incident who claim it was a hard, right-hand punch that did the damage) is now aiding Gibbons condition himself.

After his first workout with Gibbons I asked him to compare the two men. He said:

"Gibbons hit me four times to Dempsey's once. He is much the faster man of the two, in my opinion. Dempsey's punches hurt the most, but at that they were not of the knockout variety. But probably neither of the two were putting all they could on their blows."

But fans who saw Dempsey tear into the Italian after he had cut his eye open, are of the opinion that Jack was leveling. If so, the champion's punch would seem to have lost much of its former power.

And if Jack has lost the terrific punching ability that made him one of the most feared titleholders in the history of the ring, the Fourth of July may see a new heavyweight king crowned.

For Dempsey's sole defense has always been the tearing, crushing attack that earned him the title "The Tiger of the Ring."

SHERIFF BENJAMIN, LEFT, AND CHIEF ALSOP, RIGHT.

BY BILL BREITENSTEIN, NEA Service Writer.
Shelby, Mont., June 21.—Ye pickpockets and glib-tongued "con" men! Here's a little tip.

Better steer clear of Shelby's Fourth of July celebration.

For the law, with bracelets newly oiled, is waiting for you. Chief of Police Sheggon Alsop and Sheriff H. E. Benjamin have your number. So watch your step!

Alsop and Benjamin are directing the policing of Shelby and the Dempsey-Gibbons fight arena.

Detachments of the Montana National Guard, specially deputized members of the American Legion, Pinkerton and Burns' operatives, detectives from the big cities and a retinue of railroad special agents are going to help them uphold the law.

Lieutenant Ray Gaunt, identification officer for the Great Falls police department, will be on the job with a slough of Bertillon records.

And federal and state prosecution officers and deputy United States marshals will keep their eyes peeled for purveyors of pre-Volsteadian beverages.

"We're going to combine the systems of state and city enforcement with a certain type of military discipline," explains Chief Alsop.

"The national guard will give the military aspect, while the legion men will serve mainly in guarding and patrolling capacities. The railroad detectives and the men from other cities will aid us in spotting undesirable elements."

But Mayor James Johnson doesn't expect any trouble.

"Montana crowds," he says, "always are well behaved. There will be more gentlemen per square foot than you ever saw at a fight. If they're any rough-necks around, they'll not be Montanans."

Tigers and Sox Escape Cellar For 23 Years

The American League, inception in 1900, now is in the 24th season of its career.

But even though that covers quite a span of playing seasons there are nevertheless two clubs in the circuit's roster, though while not having won as many pennants and world championships as some of the others, can lay claim to at least one exceedingly unusual and likewise rare distinction.

Detroit and Chicago are the pair in question. And their claim to fame lies in the fact that not since the opening of the league 23 years ago have they wound up the season in last place. On several occasions they have been "hanging around" the cellar door, but that for they haven't succeeded in going in.

In four different campaigns the Tigers finished seventh, while the White Sox turned the trick on three occasions. But that has been the "worst" they could do.

Each of the other six clubs has been the doormat for the league at least once, with Connie Mack and his Athletics usurping the lowly station seven times. In fact Mack evidently thought so well of the place that he kept the admittance key seven years in a row or from 1915 to 1921, inclusive. Last season though, after being submerged for so long a time, he was finally obliged to come up for air.

The White Sox also boast another record—in fact two other records—for in the 23 completed seasons, the Comiskey gang has landed in the second division but seven times, being one better than the Red Sox in this respect, and has finished in the "first four" on 18 attempts or more times than any of the others.

To the St. Louis Browns goes the rather doubtful honor of having placed a team in the first division on the least number of occasions, the Missouri crowd landing there but five times. Washington is only one ahead of the Browns in this accomplishment. Incidentally these two teams are the only ones in the league which have not yet won a pennant.

1,000 Indians Take Part in Mandan Roundup

Mandan, N. D., June 21.—Approximately 1,000 members of the "Bull head" Sioux, tribesmen of Sitting Bull, in their native costumes will add to the wild west atmosphere of the Mandan Round-Up July 2, 3 and 4th, according to announcements just made. Supt. Mossman of Standing Rock has given permission for the Indians to leave that reservation and attend the Mandan Round-Up.

Others, Arkara, Gros Ventres and Mandans will be here from Fort Berthold Reservation. They will be used in a number of spectacles in connection with the Round-Up, while Indian riders will be permitted to compete on a par with the white cowpunchers. George Defender, a Sioux of Fort Yates and one of the best cowpunchers of the reservation country, will be entered in various events as the chief contender of the Indians.

While entry lists for cowboys do not close until the night before the Round-Up opens, "Badlands Bill" McCarty, a big rancher of Medora who is in charge of the show, advises that he already has definite assurances from some of the best cowpunchers and riders of South Dakota, Montana, North Dakota and

KIWANIS CLUB ORGANIZES IN FIRST MEETING

W. C. Humpton, National Representative, Explains Purposes at Luncheon Held Today

NAME CAMERON HEAD

The Kiwanis club of Bismarck got away to a flying start in its first noon-day luncheon at the McKenzie hotel today.

More than 50 members and guests who were present heard Walter C. Humpton, national representative of the Kiwanis, outline the purpose and aims of the organization, and officers and directors to serve during the balance of 1923 were named.

The next luncheon will be Monday noon, it was announced.

"The Kiwanis club is different from any other organization in the type of the service it renders," Mr. Humpton said. "It believes in co-operating in all civic endeavors, with your Association of Commerce, with other similar organizations. In Pennsylvania, for example, one club led a movement to build a community house to draw the city people and the farm residents closer together."

The United States and Canada are divided into 28 districts, he said. North Dakota clubs are in a district with South Dakota and Minnesota. There are over 1,000 clubs in the United States and Canada. The international Kiwanis organization, he said, was the servant of the local clubs.

"The two largest such organizations are the Rotary and the Kiwanis clubs," he said. "They have a membership each of about 80,000 in the North American continent. Their purpose is identical in the sense that both are altruistic. In procedure they are diametrically opposite."

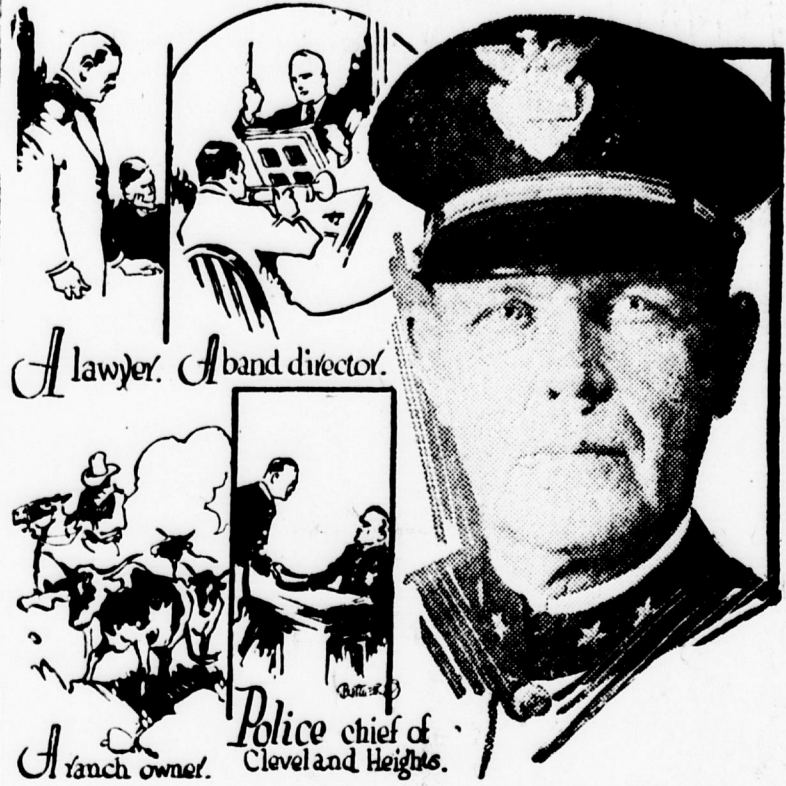

Asking concerning the origin of the name Kiwanis he said the club founder went a linguist in Detroit, Michigan, and asked him to coin a name. The linguist took a Chippewa Indian word meaning "We do business" and slightly changed it to Kiwanis, the new interpretation of which is "We build."

The club elected officers as follows: President, Scott Cameron; vice president, Dr. N. O. Ramstad; secretary, Eric Thorberg; treasurer, John A. Graham; directors, E. B. Cox, Dr. C. E. Stackhouse, M. B. Gilman, Dr. W. E. Cole, Spencer Boise, R. B. Murphy and George Harris.

F. A. Knowles won a bronze emblem of the Kiwanis club in an illustration by Mr. Humpton of a Kiwanis club attendance contest.

VERSATILE POLICE CHIEF IS "JACK OF ALL TRADES"

CHIEF WILLIAM BARROWS

BY DON P. BROHAN
NEA Service Writer

Cleveland Heights, O., June 21.—The mottoed phrase about a man being "a jack of all trades and master of none," falls flat when speaking of William G. Barrows.

For he is—
Police chief of Cleveland Heights.
A husband.
A lawyer.
A father.
A licensed exhorter of the Methodist Church.
A band director.
A ranch owner.
A fraternity member.

At the age of 12 Barrows started out as a promising musician in the home town band back in Chardon, Ohio.

Then followed student days at Allegheny College, where he became a Methodist exhorter. Soon afterward he moved to Cleveland.

But Barrows decided practicing law in Ohio would be lucrative and commenced his study. While burning the midnight oil over his books, he earned money waiting table in a hotel dining room. His perseverance was rewarded in 1892, when he was admitted to the Ohio bar. But law didn't hold him long. In the very year he received his diploma, he found him accepting a job on the Cleveland police force.

"I found it more consistent and lucrative to uphold the law with a club than with my brains," he explains.

Barrows remained in the Cleveland department until 1908. He became a sergeant under Mayor Tom L. Johnson's administration.

In 1908 he went west. There he bought a ranch.

At the time he took his place at the helm of the Cleveland Heights police force, Barrows was a police lieutenant for a steel company.

The boyhood love for music still coursed through him and three years ago he organized a 40-piece band.

It is doubtful if any other police chief in the country can claim mastery over so many varied occupations and professions.

That's about all there is to say about him—unless, oh yes, Chief Barrows is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

DUAL LIFE OF MAN DECLARED SLAYER BARED

Posed as Wife of One Man and Husband of Other, Police in Chicago Learn

Chicago, June 21.—Fred E. Thompson, believed to be the "girl bandit" who slew Richard Tesmer became a still greater enigma today when a police third degree revealed that for years he played the role of husband to a woman at the same time he was passing for the wife of a man.

All his life he had success at impersonating both sex because of the dual nature with which he said he was endowed, the suspect admitted during a severe questioning which lasted well into the morning that he had been the lawful husband of Marie Clark for two years. Known to her neighbors as Mrs. Francis Garlick, a talented singer and industrious house wife, Thompson has lived for 15 years as wife to Francis Garlick in the same building in which he and his wife maintained apartments.

The police are searching for a man who was with the person in woman's clothes who held up and shot Tesmer on the night of June 5 after robbing Tesmer and his wife. Thompson protests his innocence although two alibis have been shattered by investigation.

Thompson faced his interrogators in the black and high heel slippers in which he was clad when taken. His appearance was made incongruous by two days growth of beard which had penetrated the layers of powder and rouge on his face.

At times his male personality predominated.

"My parents were disappointed because I was not a girl," he told the authorities. "They insisted on making a girl of me and dressed me as one so they could tell their friends I was a girl. I was forced to wear dresses until I was 13. Then my masculinity grew upmost and I left home in shame, throwing away my dresses and wearing boys' clothes."

STUDEBAKER BIG-SIX TOURING CAR $1750

You Can Buy More Weight— But You Won't Find a Better Car

In the Studebaker Big-Six you get all the performance, all the comfort, and all the dependability that any car can give—at a price that smaller producers cannot even approach.

The Big-Six Touring is a seven-passenger car with a seven-passenger motor and seven-passenger dimensions throughout. It distinctly is not a seven-passenger body mounted on a five-passenger chassis.

The Big-Six will take the steepest hills on high. It will maintain a high rate of speed over long stretches hour after hour. No car provides more restful riding—none is easier to operate. None is freer from frequent repairs.

Equipment is complete, even to an extra wheel with tire, tube and tire cover.

Its low price is due to large volume and to the fact that Studebaker overhead is shared by three models—all sixes. Then, too, only one manufacturing profit is included in the Big-Six price because all vital parts are manufactured in Studebaker plants.

If you spend more than the Big-Six price you can buy more weight and bulkiness and pay more for overhead and operation, but you will not get a better automobile.

Studebaker has been building quality vehicles for 71 years.

Power to climb in high gear any climbable hill

DRY OFFICERS WILL WATCH STATE'S FAIRS

Fargo, June 21.—North Dakota fairs and towns in which they are held during the months of June, July and August will be targets for special work of federal prohibition agents, who will spare no effort to make these annual expositions and their environs as "dry" as possible.

This was announced today by Roland Cruden, executive head of the state prohibition headquarters, as he made public plans laid by his office to thwart the expected increased activity of bootleggers.

"Two men will be detailed to each fair and will closely supervise the grounds to make sure that the prohibition laws are observed," he said. "We have not had much trouble with the fairs in the past but the presence of the deputies has a wholesome effect and keeps the bootleggers at a distance."
